Join some of the world's best problem-solvers, pioneers, and out-of-the-box thinkers.

Everspring partners with leading universities to create a new standard of excellence in online education. Our dynamic and innovative team shapes the culture of our company and powers our university partners' success. We are not a typical online education company – Everspring's unique approach influences everything we do.

Made up of production, instructional design and quality assurance, the Learning Design team inspires, engages and empowers each other to create the next generation of learning. This collaborative team works to translate traditional courseware into online formats in innovative and compelling ways to create innovative online courses for our University partners. The Instructional Designer I works within a multi-disciplinary course production team to translate traditional courseware into online formats in innovative and compelling ways.

This position reports to the Director of Instructional Design.

This is a Chicago-based position at our headquarters near both Ogilvie and Union Stations.

The ideal candidate:

- Is motivated by a passion to create outstanding learning experiences
- Has a demonstrated track record creating engaging, effective online programs, courseware or products
- Is an excellent and patient communicator, comfortable communicating with university professors, curriculum developers, and academic technologists
- Has experience and is comfortable working with a wide range of academic content
- Is a natural collaborator, but is capable and comfortable moving projects forward and driving results with empathy for the needs of multiple stakeholders
- Displays the highest levels of integrity
- Operates with a strong work ethic, requiring minimal supervision
- Interacts with others using sound judgment, good humor, and consistent fairness in a fastpaced environment
- Wants to build and be part of a great team, doing a great thing
- Has a curious and creative mindset – enjoys change!

Responsibilities:

- Design and build assigned courses, creating innovative online courses that meet the quality specifications of our partner faculty and meet the deadlines of the Production Schedule
- Communicate with faculty at our partner universities, guiding them in course development
- Collaborate with faculty to adjust content for available delivery methods to support desired learning outcomes, moving from a high level course plan to a detailed course design format
- Collaborate with a team of online course producers to produce and/or source multimedia learning objects (video, audio, interactive objects, simulations, etc.)
- Participate in the refinement of frameworks, templates, and prototypes for course design
